

New Reference Manager Gadget Simplifies Discovery, Boosts Research Productivity With Robust Literature Management

Reprints Desk Introduces Unique Reference Manager App with Integrated Search and On-Demand Literature Access to Individual Researchers and Organizations

ENCINO, Calif., April 25, 2019 — Research Solutions, Inc. (OTCQB: RSSS), a pioneer in providing cloud-based workflow solutions for R&D driven organizations, and its wholly-owned subsidiary Reprints Desk announced the addition of the Reference Manager Gadget to its Article Galaxy platform. Now available in the Article Galaxy Gadget Store, Reference Manager combines scientific search and discovery, on-demand access to full-text scholarly articles, and robust bibliographic reference management into one integrated application.

A single-source solution, Reference Manager offers intelligent management of personal and group bibliographies with integrated discovery and copyright-managed PDF collections to both individual researchers and enterprises. From within the Reference Manager Gadget interface, users can:

- Search 15,000+ scholarly journals and the PubMed database
- Import references and manage bibliographies
- Tag references by keyword in self-populating folders
- Track research with journal table-of-content (TOC) feeds
- Purchase full-text scholarly journal articles on the spot
- Author papers with in-line citing and writing in Microsoft Word

“Our mission to help scientists personalize their research and improve the discovery process continues with the release of our Reference Manager Gadget,” said Peter Derycz, CEO and president of Research Solutions. “This game-changing app for one-stop reference and literature management reduces the time-consuming and laborious nature of scientific research. At Reprints Desk, we're enthusiastic about helping researchers accelerate science."

Designed with individual researchers and their workgroups in mind, Reference Manager Gadget makes it easy to import references by drag and drop, or by searching PubMed along with the full-text content of 26 scholarly publishers. The Gadget enables users to easily manage and share bibliographies, and automate discovery by subscribing to journal TOC feeds or tracking new citations with keyword-driven, self-populating smart folders.

Organizations can opt to save time and costs with Reference Manager's Group Bibliography – a copyright-compliant library of scientific literature in a central location – where everyone in the organization can securely access and share previously acquired PDFs for which re-use licenses exist. The Group Bibliography feature is exclusively available with an Article Galaxy Enterprise subscription and helps to avoid duplicate article orders.

Managed by Reprints Desk, the Article Galaxy Gadget Store offers a vast library of easy-to-use apps that help personalize and enhance research. Opening a Gadget Store account is free and includes access to eight Gadgets.
